If you've gotten sick of the ringtones that come with your Android phone or iPhone, it's easy enough to buy new ones. But before you do that, there are a number of sites where you can get free ringtones. We've rounded up some of the best. Will My Phone Support All Ringtones? If you own an Android device, things are simple. You can download ringtones to your Android phone directly, since it supports MP3 files as ringtones. You can even create your own custom ringtones for Android if you want. RELATED: How to Create Custom Ringtones for Your Android Phone With iPhone, things are a little different. Most of the sites we've included in this article let you download MP3 files. But, the iPhone requires ringtones to be in their own AAC format, and they have an .m4r file extension. You can use MP3 ringtones, but you'll have to download them to a PC and convert them before you can use them on your iPhone. We've got a full guide on adding custom ringtones to your iPhone that covers how to do that conversion in iTunes and then transfer the ringtones to your phone. You can even use that same technique to make ringtones out of your own music or sounds. RELATED: How to Add Custom Ringtones to Your iPhone Is Downloading Ringtones from the Internet Safe? That all depends on where you get them, and which ones you download. There are plenty of shady websites on the Internet that try to lure you in with free ringtones. A good test is to see if the website is full of ads or asks you for money. Another common tactic is that websites will show you some ringtones, but when you click the link, the site tries to download something else. Always pay attention to the file extension to see if you're downloading the file that you requested. An executable file extension (exe, msi, dmg, apk) is a huge red flag. Then there is the issue of legality. Most websites have a mix of ringtones, some legal and some not. Obviously, if you're getting ringtones for songs from the last several decades, they're probably not legal, and we would recommend that you stay away from them. It would be safer to buy ringtones like that or, if you already own the song, to make your own ringtone from it. So, with that out of the way, here are our top websites for downloading ringtones. Zedge Zedge hosts a variety of user-created ringtones. You can search for ringtones on the site, but the site offers no other real organization—there are no categories to browse. As you keep scrolling, more and more ringtones are loaded onto the screen for you to choose from. You can preview ringtones on the main page or the dedicated ringtone page where you also have the option to download them. Zedge also offers apps for iOS and Android which surprisingly have better interfaces and let you browse categories. Notification Sounds Notification Sounds is not the typical ringtone website. It's a place where you can get ringtones similar to the ones you expect to be pre-loaded to your phone by your phone manufacturer. The ringtones on the website are organized by categories or tags, and there are plenty of both to explore. The handy preview option lets you listen to ringtones quickly, even on mobile devices. Once you find a ringtone that you like, you can download an MP3 version (for Android devices) or an M4R version (for iPhones). If you have Android, you can download the ringtone directly to your phone. If you have an iPhone, you'll have to use iTunes to transfer the ringtone to your device. One thing to keep in mind about Notification Sounds is that most of the ringtones they host are meant to be used for notifications, not ringtones, so they're pretty short. If you're looking for ringtones for calls, the selection is more limited. Melofania Melofania is an amazing website for ringtones with a ton of features. Not only can you browse the music of various artists and download their ringtones, but you create ringtones from YouTube videos or even upload your own music. You can find your favorite ringtones using the search function on the top, and then preview the ringtone on its page. You'll find a few different variations of the ringtones to choose from. Once you've selected a ringtone you like, click the Android or iPhone button and the ringtone for the specific format you need. And once again, Android users can download directly to their phone, but iOS users will need to use their computer and iTunes as an intermediary. Important Note: As we've mentioned, downloading ringtones made from popular songs is infringing on copyright. Therefore we recommend that you use Melofania only for the music that you legally own and have the right to modify and use as a ringtone. MyTinyPhone MyTinyPhone has a gigantic collection of ringtones totaling over half a million. The ringtones are neatly organized into multiple categories like Jazz, Rock, Themes, Voice, Fun, and more—making them easy to browse. Each ringtone has a star rating and a view count, which makes it quick to filter popular ringtones. One small annoyance, though, is that you can't just click the big play button shown on the category pages to sample the ringtone. Clicking it takes you to that ringtone's page, where you can then listen to it. It's kind of a drag. Still, it's worth putting up with for the huge selection and solid categorization. You can download ringtones in either MP3 or M4R format. Audiko Audiko is another popular website that lets you download user-created ringtones. It also lets you create your own ringtones by uploading your favorite songs. On the homepage, you'll see the most popular ringtones, SMS ringtones, and the top artists in your country. Scroll down a bit and you'll find links to popular genres that you can check out. When you open a specific ringtone's page, you'll see an option to listen to the tone and its variations. If you like the ringtone, you can click the download button to start the process. Unfortunately, you'll have to create an account to download ringtones from Audiko, but the upside is that all your downloaded ringtones are saved in your account, and you can download the iOS or Android versions for them anytime you like. Audiko does have an Android App, which is free to use and does all the things that you can do on the website. A paid iOS app is also available for $0.99, but we suggest you not bother with that. It has the same functionality as the free website, and you're going to need your computer and iTunes to transfer the ringtone to your iPhone anyway. Image Credit: Gts/Shutterstock Ever been in a situation when you mistake someone else's phone ringing for yours because it has the same default ringtone? Android allows a lot of customization and this includes the ability to change your ringtone. You can simply choose one of the preset ringtones that your smartphone offers. Alternatively, you can set custom ringtones from your media files, or download a brand new ringtone using a third-party app for maximum personalization. Learn all the ways to set Android ringtones and change them as often as you like. How to Set Android Ringtones on If you find the default ringtone on your phone annoying, or maybe it simply doesn't feel like your own, you can easily change it in your phone's Settings. To change your Android ringtone, follow the steps below. Open Settings on your smartphone. Select Sound & vibration. Scroll down and select Ringtone. When you get the Permission request pop-up window, select Allow to proceed. Under Ringtones, you'll find a selection of preset Android ringtones that you can choose from. Select them one by one to hear what they sound like and then choose the one you want. How to Set a Custom Android Ringtone You can also set your own custom ringtone on your Android phone through the Settings app. Note that before you can set a custom Android ringtone, you need to download the audio file to your smartphone. If you want to change your ringtone to something more personalized, follow the steps below. Open Settings on your smartphone. Select Sound & vibration. Scroll down and select Ringtone. Depending on what phone you have, there are different paths to set a custom ringtone on your Android. It might be a separate Custom section where you'll find an option to Select from files, or it could be a + icon that you'll need to select to add a custom ringtone. You'll then see a list of all of your downloaded audio files. Select one of them to set as your new custom Android ringtone. How to Set a Custom Android Notification Sound After you set a custom Android ringtone, you might want to take it further and change the notification sound on your Android device as well. Make sure you first download a message tone or a notification sound that you want to use, then follow the steps below. Open Settings on your smartphone. Select Sound & vibration. Scroll down and select Default notification sound. Select Custom > Select from files and choose the audio file that you want to use as your new notification sound. You can repeat the same procedure to change your default message tone to a custom one as well. How to Set Android Ringtones for Specific Contacts If you want to know who's calling before picking up your phone or even looking at it, you can set specific Android ringtones for different contacts. This will help you identify the caller easier, as well as save you from getting bored of hearing the same default ringtone all the time. To set an Android ringtone for a specific contact, follow the steps below. Note that the instructions might differ slightly depending on what smartphone you're using. Open the Contacts app on your phone and find the contact you'd like to set the ringtone for. Open contact's settings and select Edit. Scroll down and select Ringtone. Under Ringtones you can choose one of the preset ringtones, or select Custom and set a personalized ringtone from a media file for your contact. Once you've selected the right ringtone, go back to the Edit Contact page and select Save. Now you can repeat the procedure to set different ringtones for different contacts on your Android device. How to Change Android Ringtones Using Zedge You can also use third-party apps and websites to find and install new ringtones on your Android device. One of the widely-used apps like that is Zedge. It's a customization app for Android that will help you create a unique look and feel to your smartphone, with an emphasis on wallpapers and ringtones. Zedge makes it simple for you to both download and set new ringtones in just a few clicks inside the app. There's a free version that you can use if you don't mind the ads, or pay for a subscription if you're planning to use Zedge often. Here's how to use Zedge to set new Android ringtones on your smartphone. Open Zedge on your phone. In the upper-left corner of the screen, open the menu and select New Ringtones. You can browse the audio files using categories like music genres, popular tunes, or even countries, as well as search for a specific track within the app. Once you find the ringtone that you like, select it in the app. Select Save > Set Ringtone. Select Allow to give Zedge access to your media files. You'll see a pop-up message Standard ringtone updated, which means that you successfully changed your Android ringtone. You can also use Zedge to set custom notification, alarm sound, contact ringtone, as well as just save the ringtones that you like on your phone for future use. Change Your Default Ringtone to Something Fun Changing your ringtone isn't just a way to personalize your smartphone. It can also improve your productivity. For example, if you set different ringtones for the personal and professional contacts on your Android device, it'll help you keep the two worlds separate. If you're feeling nostalgic over that old Nokia that you used to have, you can also find the ringtone that sounds just like the real phone from the past. Do you often change ringtones on your Android? Which method of setting a new ringtone do you prefer: using the smartphone's settings or a third-party option? Share your experience with Android ringtones in the comments section below.
